

Timber Management Committee Report

At the first meeting of the Timber Management Committee the following items were discussed and agreed to.....

- ◆ Endcheck or similar product is to be applied to the ends of logs as soon as possible after felling to prevent cracking. If this is not possible, the log ends are to be re-cut and sealed later. This treatment should also be applied to the end grain of green turning blanks prior to stacking.
- ◆ All slabs in the racks on the eastern side of the milling area are to be ripped down the centre to relieve pressure, and prevent cracking and wastage of a large area of the slab. This should be carried out as a matter of policy, with the exception of slabs clearly identified as suitable to remain in one piece. The two halves of a ripped slab could be numbered so that they may be re-joined in the future if required.
- ◆ The above mentioned racks are to be strengthened by the use of hardwood bearers and cross pieces under the existing planking, to counteract sagging.
- ◆ The timber trolleys are to be adapted, so that they may be loaded into the kiln with a winch system through the end wall to avert the possibility of injury to members.
- ◆ It was felt that at the present, timber with a maximum thickness of 50mm be placed in the kiln, due to cracking of thicker slabs and blanks—caused by uneven drying. Investigations have revealed that a system of dry and humid air is required to evenly move the moisture from the centre of thicker timber to the surface. If hot, dry air is used for drying, then the surface layers of the drying timber may dry rapidly and develop case hardening and cracks. It was also felt that a weekly check be made of the drying process by the Timber Flow Officer or his deputy. It would be an advantage if a diary was kept of loading date etc. To ascertain when timber is ready for removal.
- ◆ The Club is to continue to identify faulty timber in the racks (including the Turners section) and remove for disposal. George Blowers has offered to remove the condemned timber, but I feel this should be on a Club basis.

- ◆ The timber cut by George, which is located adjacent to the paint container, to be relocated into the racks at the rear of the shed. As this timber was cut over a year ago, it should now be suitable for use. Most of this timber was milled in sizes suitable for Squatters Chairs.
- ◆ George Blowers will supply a list of all milled timber and logs at his site to allow us to choose the most suitable timber to cut for our purposes. It is understood that most of the milled timber on site is either camphor laurel or silky oak.
- ◆ The existing Outside Slabbing Bandsaw should be refurbished with new bearings and a bi-metal blade at this time to allow the milling of suitable timber at the shed by a dedicated team of members.

The long term questions raised in the paper “Timber Management –The way Ahead” were not raised at this meeting of the sub-committee. It was felt that we should address the immediate concerns outlined above to consolidate our position at this time.

Hugh McKenna-Toy Maker Extraordinaire

My first effort at toy making was 46 years ago. We lived on the 3rd floor of a government housing flat and my workshop was our kitchen table where I made a dolls house for my first born daughter.

Over time I made other toys for my siblings kids.

Woodworking was put on the backburner for many years as I tried to earn a crust, until I resumed my interest in toymaking in my late forties, making an assortment of trucks, graders and cars for my grandchildren (of which I currently have 19).

We moved from Canberra to the Sunshine Coast in November 2007 and I joined the Woodies in March 2008. When first shown around the shed, I was in awe of the standard of work being produced. I knew I would have to lift the standard of my work.

I have picked up many tips from different club members that gave me the confidence to try more detailed work.

I don't know where my interest in woodworking comes from....my father worked in brickyards in Scotland and Australia and his brothers were coal miners!

I renovated that first Doll's House some 17 years ago for my Granddaughter and its still in existence today.

I thank the Club and members for inspiring me to do better.

“ Intrepid World Traveller “

Hi all,

After disembarking at Barcelona, Spain, went on 2 tours of the area taking in the port and city environs and saw most of the improvements that were mainly due to having the Olympic games staged there a few years back.

Enjoyed a tapas bar experience and was surprised to hear that the Spaniards here spoke a different language [Catalan] anyway this was novel to me. Hopped back on train to Madrid where tried to get an audience with the Pope again as he was entertaining about 2 million young followers...was unsuccessful again! This place was a mad house with people partying all night, so moved on to San Sebastian, where I had many good times visiting tapas bars and museums etc. This place is full of history as its in the centre of the Basque country, where they speak a different language again. These people seem to be very happy, whilst walking along the break wall, I glanced down at the beach Wow there was a lot of half nudity going on [eye candy] for some. Back on choo-choo to Bordeaux, then to Paris. After finding my accommodation in a little back street, but not far from the Tower, I arranged a guided tour of the area, taking in most of the sites, then a couple of museums. Stayed 3 nights then on to Belgium where upon arrival at Brussels train station, I copped one of the worst things that travellers can experiencea pick pocket in action. Any way after sorting out my missing documents with the police at the next station in Brugge, I managed to have an enjoyable stay there, taking in this ancient city and some lovely people that were sympathetic to my plight. Back on the train a little wiser and some what poorer, ventured on to sin city in Holland. Well they say what happens in Amsterdam should stay there, very little happened apart from my day time visit to the Red-Light District, where a sheila tried to coerce me into a doorway after hearing my accent, she said she only wanted to talk but I didn't so got out of there .The smell of something strange was very evident wafting around the streets, but this is a very interesting place with all the water ways and canals providing the hop on and off transport to museums and other shopping areas, via boats designed for tourists. There is a very good tram system here also. A place to be visited by all people with a broad mind. Decided to have my last week in Switzerland, so back on train to Frankfurt then to Interlaken where every turn is a postcard scene, took in museum village of Ballenburg, a tour of Lake Brienz by boat, taking in many small villages that dot the foreshore. Had the chance to go up 10000ft via 4 cable cars to the top of Schilthorn Mtn, this is where a 007 movie was made back in the sixty's. This mountain provides a panoramic view of the Eiger, Mounke and the Jungfrau Mtns and others. After a delightful stay, back to Frankfurt Germany and then onto Scotland.

Bye for now Dave Banister, XXX for the sheilas.
